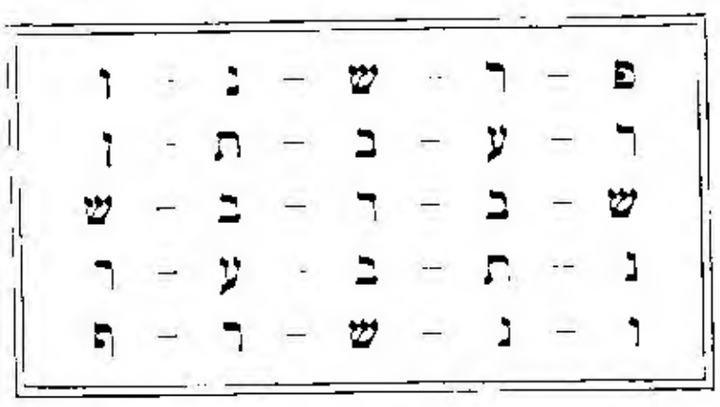
JEW ORIGINATED CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

The new craze which has seized the American public—the cross-word puzzle—is of Jewish origin. It is not new. It dates back to the Middle Ages. Only in those days cross-word puzzles were the intellectual diversions of poets and philosophers who used them as vehicles to veil their meaning, whilst to-day they have become the popular indoor and outdoor sport of all classes, intellectual and otherwise, principally otherwise.

According to recent research, it was a Spanish-Jewish poet and philosopher, Abraham Ibn Ezra (born 1093—died 1167) who was the first to get up the cross-word puzzle. It is related that a pious friend of Ibn Ezra sent him a pot of honey with an inquiry whether honey in a fermented state is kosher for Passover use. The honey contained a bee. In replying, Ibn Ezra, who was a clever epigramatist, sent the following five word cross-word puzzle in Hebrew which reads the same, up and down, across and back:



Perashnu, Raabathan, Sh'Bedvash, Nitbaar, V'nisraf. When translated it may mean, "We have interpreted that the ravenous one (leaven) in the honey is removed and burned."

Abraham Ibn Ezra was a Hebrew poet, mathematician, Biblical interpreter, philosopher, astronomer and clever epigramatist. He is even supposed to have visited London on one of his globe-trotting tours. He chose the form of a cross-word as his reply in accordance, probably with the custom of poets and epigramatists of his time.

Ibn Ezra also wrote other cross-word puzzles as no doubt others of his time were wont to do. Acrostic poems and cross-word puzzles expressing theological ideas may even be found in the poetical portions (Pyutim) of the old High Holyday prayer books and in other parts of Hebrew literature. When properly used, it is a gentle art that was studiously cultivated by Hebrew poets and writers from that time to this.

It is likely that the modern popularizer of the cross-word puzzle is also a Jew. Whoever he may be, his name has not yet become known. He is still hiding under the mantle of anonymity. And perhaps it is best that it is so. I will not be the least bit surprised to find some anti-Semite who is also a psychologist, write an article any day denouncing the Jews for having thrust this time-waster and general nuisance upon a gullible and unsuspecting public that must have a new fad every other day. In this respect the American public are like children. They must always have new toys to play with. Perhaps it is the hectic life we lead in these times which makes us crave some sort of diversion to take our minds off our nerve-exhausting work during those few hours of leisure which are given to us and which so few people really know how to enjoy. Yesterday it was Mah Jong, to-day it is cross-word puzzles and to-morrow it may be gold fish or white mice. Who knows? It is a genuine pity that our generation has lost the art of true recreation, and during the leisure hours of the evening rush about like mad seeking excitement and thrills to slake their jaded appetites and desires.

The cross-word puzzle has one good feature—it keeps people home, but on the other hand it is the worst time killer and nuisance I know. It has absolutely no intellectual value, in spite of the claims made for it that it enriches one's vocabulary and teaches us many new things we otherwise never might have known.

Psychologists will tell you that the way to enrich your vocabulary is to keep on reading good literature and hearing good speech spoken. Noting new and unfamiliar word and idioms, watching the style of good authors and speakers, trying to imitate them by developing a style and vocabulary of one's own. This is the best way to enrich your vocabulary and learn things. One should always read with a good dictionary and reference book handy and look up strange words and unfamiliar allusions and figures of speech. It is only through association of ideas, by suggestion, memory and imitation, that we enrich our vocabulary and literary knowledge. The cross-word puzzle with its stupid horizontal and vertical guides or hints, arranged according to no sequence of thought or logic in content material, is no help in this direction. Neither is the cross-word puzzle conducive to the maintenance of one's temper or serenity of mind. It is nerve-racking rather than restful and is not to be compared in value to the recreation one gets through reading a good book.

The cross-word puzzle is arranged to trick and challenge those who work it out. It calls for a knowledge of outlandish, archaic or slang expressions as the case may be, which words are seldom if ever used in literary writing or even colloquial speech. Names of animals that no longer exist, or places too insignificant to bother about, or people whom their own generation hardly knew, are the things the cross-word puzzles call for. It is this sort of dead knowledge that we are also supposed to acquire through cross-word puzzles. Who wants or needs such knowledge? This is not knowledge. It is sheer mental rubbish. If you don't care about making your mind an intellectual waste basket, then become a cross-word puzzle fiend. If you do care, then avoid it.

There are over 300,000 words in the English language. Shakespeare only used 30,000. The literary man seldom uses more than 5,000, whilst the average man can manage to express himself and get along with less than 300. Shakespeare didn't acquire his vocabulary by working out cross-word puzzles and neither will anyone else. It is no trick for the hacks who turn out cross-word puzzles by the thousand to select from the 300,000 words in the English vocabulary enough unfamiliar words to build their cross-word puzzles. If those who have been working to solve cross-word puzzles, would only stop and check up the words and ideas that they acquire in this way, they would be astounded at the terrific waste of time it has been.

The cross-word puzzle has only one effect on me. It makes me cross. It is a puzzle to me how so many supposedly intelligent and intellectual people have succumbed to this new temptation to waste time.

It is my opinion that the vogue of the cross-word puzzle is due to the normal tendency in human nature to kill time whilst giving ourselves the illusion that such time-killing is really profitable. I pity the millions of people who actually believe in their ignorance that they are spending their time profitably and intellectually by solving cross-word puzzles. One good feature about it is that it won't last long. While it lasts, however, it is turning people's attentions and minds away from good and profitable reading and merely creating a market for synonym dictionaries

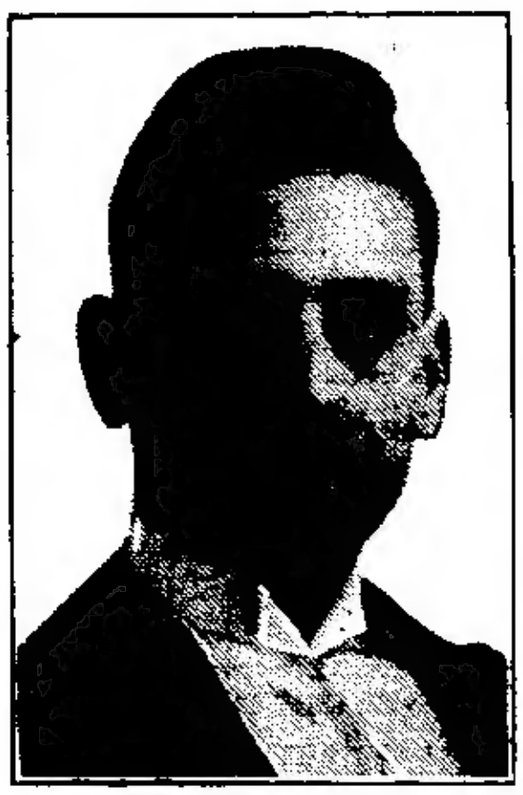
New Law Firm

Lyon W. Jacobs, K.C.



Nat. W. Jacobs, B.C.L.

Montreal Jewry will be pleased to learn of the formation of a new Jewish legal firm. Lyon W. Jacobs, K.C., and Nat. W. Jacobs, B.C.L., two popular local figures, have associated themselves together as partners.

Lyon W. Jacobs has been in the public eye as a lawyer of merit and as Alderman, and has always enjoyed public esteem and confidence. He has succeeded in building a very large legal practice, due to his astute abilities. He is a forcible speaker and has gained for himself an enviable reputation as an orator. He has been Acting Mayor of Montreal and President of the Law Commission.

lecturer. He is extremely active in communal service and devotes most of his leisure time to literary pursuits. He has made writing one of his main hobbies. He has already published many pamphlets and essays which have received endorsation of editors of local newspapers.

Both Lyon and Nat. Jacobs can boast of having hosts of friends and admirers. Their success as partners is assured.

They will conduct their law business under the firm name of Jacobs & Jacobs, with offices in the Jacobs Building, 282 St. Catharine St. West, Montreal.

INTERESTED IN DEVELOPMENT OF NORTHERN QUEBEC

A fact which indicates very well to what point foreign financiers are interesting themselves in the development of Northern Quebec is the incorporation, under Dominion Charter, of the Canadian firm Maloney, Alberton & Company.

Mr. Samuel Reichbach, president of the New York firm of this name, is the president of the Canadian firm, which is immediately opening offices in Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. Reichbach has interested himself for some time past in the development of Northern Quebec and, through his New York office has made considerable Canadian transactions of value during the past year.

He was a member of the important delegation which recently went to Quebec in the interest of completing the Southern Abitibi Railway, which will join the District of Harricanaw with Amos on the Transcontinental.

every friday

Into such a state of phlegm has American Jewish journalism fallen that a fight between competing papers is more than enough to bring a pleasurable thrill to those grown restless under too much peace. A merry one is being waged now in sunny California where the California Jewish Review and the Bnai Brith Messenger are the parties and the Review the aggressor. To date the ammunition consists of a lot of capital letters, the fact that the Messenger has a Christian lady for editor, the slogan of the Messenger that it has the largest paid circulation and a challenge to that by the Review.

For years the Bnai Brith Messenger went its illegible way, the only English-Jewish paper in Los Angeles. About three years ago Dr. George J. Saylin of Buffalo, started the California Jewish Review which has lately been taken over by Joseph J. Cummins, of Detroit, a gentleman without the triumph of his rival at heart. In the fur that has been flying anything of the slightest argumentative value, enjoying importance perhaps undeserved, can be discerned. Therefore in a prominent place in a three-column editorial is a quotation from "Every Friday" to the effect that the Bnai Brith Messenger, is a miscreant for having used material from this paper without crediting it to the proper source. It is not given to every columnist every day to be relied upon like this at a time of warfare and we appreciate the privilege.

To the contribution which we have already made we add the hope that the battle is one to the death with the best paper winner, since two English-Jewish papers in a city are usually one too many. Our preference for the California Jewish Review is chiefly in the interest of the eyesight of Los Angeles readers, for the Messenger does not deserve to live until it uses paper that is paper, and ink that is ink and realizes that a paper is never a publication unless it can be deciphered in the first place.

With the recent deaths of Samuel Gompers and Julius Kahn there must be a slight pause at least in the day's occupation among anti-immigrationists who point out the undesirability of just such aliens as these men were when they first came to America. Both of them, though foreign-born, rose to be leaders in the country of their adoption. Their deaths at a time when the United States is so set against admitting others who might prove equally of service seems to indicate the passing of a type formerly considered indispensable to the development of the country.

Gompers and Kahn stood for what foreign Jews could bring to America, though Gompers could hardly be called a Jew if affiliations mean anything. In the forty years of his work in the labour movement he was never engaged in Jewish movements as such, and he was not known publicly as a Jew. Many a fellow-citizen must have been born and must have grown to maturity during Gompers' public life who learned with surprise that the funeral service was performed by a rabbi, Dr. Stephen Wise. In his eulogy of the labour leader, Rabbi Wise gave credit for Gompers' idealism, courage and love of his fellow-men, to his Jewish past. Certainly if blood ever tells it should have with Gompers, whose family is the only Jewish family in recent centuries with an established genealogical record. Its history goes back to Rabbi Gomperz of 13th century Cologne and as traced by Professor David Kaufman and Dr. Max Freudenthal shows that over 300 of its men distinguished themselves in many European countries in professions, commerce, science and statesmanship.

From the Jewish viewpoint, Julius Kahn was a better answer to exclusionists because he was more Jewish and a public figure at the same time. Kahn, who was chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee when he died, had served for twenty-three years in the House of Representatives. Although a Republican he is credited with having put through Congress the World War programme of President Wilson, and other proposals of the Democrats. He was widely known as an advocate of compulsory military training and after the armistice, pushed legislation for re-organization of the army. When his death was announced in the House, it adjourned at once out of respect, and when his body was taken from Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco to the cemetery, it was escorted by uniformed soldiers, besides a company of 50 United States army officers.

The lives of both of these men, Samuel Gompers, the very conservative labour leader and anti-Bolshevist, and Julius Kahn, the congressman militarist, although foreign-born Jews, should make an irresistible appeal to the hundred per cent. American and Nordic [illegible] question whether America should be reserved so securely for Americans after all. The attitude of a least one average citizen attests to the forcefulness of these men, for Henry Ford had nothing but villification for Julius Kahn and his statement on the death of Gompers was the first in several years to suggest that a man might be born a Jew

News Feature Brings Up Memories

The Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

In your last week's issue under "Social Life About Twenty-five Years Ago—Do You Remember?" will you please permit me to tell you of my remembrance? The confirmation you speak of was the first held in Toronto and of the seven girls who would even now be young women, four are no more. One, my sister, was cut off by the will of God in her nineteenth year when the world was full of promise for her. She was a student in the Arts course at the University of Toronto, a member of the executive of her class, class orator and leader of the general social activities, a leader in the then infant Zionist movement and an active participant in all Jewish activities that young women took a part in, especially school work at the Bond Street Sabbath School under our well beloved and reverend dean of the Toronto Jewish community, Edmund Scheuer. Her tragic death and funeral are vivid in the memory of all the residents of that time. In passing, strange to say, last week also brought to memory, by an article in the press, my late brother, Joseph W., who was the only Jewish bank manager in the Dominoin and passed away several years ago.

Michael-Spector

The wedding was solemnized at the King Edward Avenue Synagogue, Tuesday afternoon of last week at four o'clock, of Miss Sarah Spector, eldest daughter of the late A. L. Spector and Mrs. Spector, and Sol Michael, of New York City, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Michael, of London, England. Rabbis J. D. Mirsky and M. J. Mintz officiated. The Synagogue was decorated with ferns, palm and white ribbon. An orchestra played the wedding music. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, I. Spector, of Montreal, wore a gown of white georgette beaded in rhinestones and pearls. At each side of the skirt white ostrich was arranged in drape effect. Her bridal veil was in cap shape caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Spector, who wore peach georgette, trimmed with tiny pin tucks and gold lace. She carried a bouquet of Columbia roses, and wore the groom's gift, a mother-of-pearl necklace. Frances Kizell, cousin of the bride, wore a dress of shell-pink georgette trimmed with touches of blue and pink baby ribbon. She carried a basket of baby 'mums and narcissi, which was tied with tulle. Her gift from the groom was a silver bracelet set with sapphires. Dr. H. Dover was best man. Ushers were Meyer Dover and Robert Dover, Moishe Spector and Wm. Spector. Mrs. Spector, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black charmeuse satin, beaded in steel beads, and a black picture hat trimmed with ostrich feather trimming. Her corsage was of crimson roses and narcissi. A dinner and reception were held at the home of the bride's mother to immediate relatives and friends. The house was adorned with white 'mums, wedding bells and white ribbons. The bride and groom received standing under a bridal arch erected in the reception room. Mr. and Mrs. Michael left for Montreal and eastern points, and will live in New York. Going away, the bride wore a tailored costume of brown tweed with henna-coloured tucked georgette vest and cuffs, a henna felt hat trimmed with a tailored bow of ribbon of the same shade and a seal coat trimmed with grey squirrel. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond and sapphire dinner ring. Among the out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. I. Spector, Mr. and Mrs. Casper Spector, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gold and Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Dover, all of Montreal; Mrs. Archie Dover, of Cornwall; and Mrs. J. Dover, of Shawville.

Report on Montreal's School Issue

Definite and decisive differences of opinion as to the Protestant-Jewish school question in Montreal exist, as shown in the report on the issue which reached the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, prime minister, to-day. The issues are involved with legal matters to such an extent as to foreshadow an appeal to the Privy Council, and a decision to come following such opinion when there is definite knowledge as to the legal opinion.

There are three reports on the Protestant-Jewish matter. One is by Sir Arthur Currie, E. W. Beatty and Walter Mitchell, the three Protestant members of the special commission on school matters on the Island of Montreal. Two of the three Jewish members, namely, Michael Hirsch and S. W. Cohen, made a second report on the same matter, and a third report, is made by Ald. Jos. Schubert.

The Protestant members attach to their report an opinion on the part of Eugene Lafleur, K.C., to the effect that the act of the Legislature of 1903 is ultra vires. This is the act which provides that Jews, for school purposes, shall be considered as Protestants in the province of Quebec. Mr. Lafleur declares also to be ultra vires issues related to the constitutionality of the 1903 act.

On the other hand, Messrs. Michael Hirsch and S. W. Cohen, the majority Jewish members, attach to their report the written opinion of Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, a former member of the Supreme Court of Canada, which declares the 1903 act to be constitutional, and similarly related issues to that act to be constitutional also.

The suggestion is made by the Protestant members that the issue be tried in the courts.

Ald. Schubert, in his Jewish minority report, makes two suggestions. One is that the present Protestant schools be split up, so that those schools in which the Jewish pupils are in a majority shall be under the control of a Jewish board, and those schools in which Protestant pupils are in majority shall be under a Protestant board, with central financial control. If this is impossible, and an amendment to the British North America Act cannot be brought about, Mr. Schubert suggests a third panel.

As regards the matter of the Catholic schools, the three Catholic members, namely, Sir Lomer Gouin, Aime Geoffrion, K.C., and J. Auguste Richard, who died only a few days ago, are in accord with the principle of further annexations of Catholic school commissions on the Island of Montreal, and also of further centralization and provisions for uniformity in the Catholic school system on the island.

The language employed in the writing of each of the reports is of a broad and tolerant nature, no words being used to cause future unpleasantness.

The legal opinions of Messrs. Lafleur and Nesbitt stand out especially in both the Protestant report and the Jewish majority report, and, before review of either report, are worthy of special reference in view of the probable ultimate result.

and cross-word puzzles. It is a menace to the habits of good reading which we should cultivate, especially in our youth. I predict that in a few months when the cross-word puzzle fad has been replaced by a new fad, the dictionaries which the presses now can't turn out fast enough will be thrown in disgust to the attic or cellar to collect dust, and never be consulted again.

Viewed in this light, I am somewhat sorry that a gentle and fine art used so skillfully by poets and philosophers as a sort of intellectual sport and diversion has been so degraded. Ibn Ezra would certainly turn over in his grave if he knew or suspected how his clever invention has been exploited by those commercial interests whose only concern is to cater to the fickle and gullible public.

ONE HUNDRED MEN TO ASSIST TALMUD TORAH CAMPAIGN

To rid the institution of the liabilities that they are carrying, the latest move of the Board is the organization of a brigade of one hundred young business and professional men to assist in the Talmud Torah budget campaign to be inaugurated in March. Among those who have already volunteered are Dr. Manly Finkelstein, Claude Hyman, Dr. Bermack, E. Cantor, Bert Weidman, Chas. Finkelstein, Hero Haid, Chas. Smiten, Dr. Fried, Dr. Churchill, W. M. Tobias.

Sunday evening, February 8, 8.30 p.m., the Talmud Torahs will celebrate Chamiso Osor B'Shvat. Music, moving pictures; addresses by Sam Berg, president of the Talmud Torahs, and L. Levitt, principal. The Ladies' Auxiliary will serve refreshments and a bag of sweets to every child. Upon the initiative of Mrs. M. Hepner, a Girls' Guide was organized, to be called the Talmud Torah Girl Guides.

Arrangements are being made to organize a choir and band of the Talmud Torah children.

A Talmud Torah bulletin is published every month, containing news in English, Jewish and Hebrew. H. Parker is the editor, Sam Berg and L. Levitt, associate editors.

OPEN NEW EXTENSION FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Saturday afternoon the opening of the building of the extension and new dormitory of the Jewish Children's Home, 336 Annette Street, was held under the auspices of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. The chairman, Rabbi Brickner, pointed out that the new wing would double the capacity of the building, the older portion having become inadequate.

Mayor Hiltz said that the Jews, above all other peoples, were active in looking after the unfortunates of their race, and he offered his congratulations on the work being undertaken. Mayor-elect Thomas Foster spoke of the valuable work being done by the institution. Sigmund Samuels emphasized the importance of bringing up the children, firstly as Canadians and then as Jews. Edmund Scheuer, on of the founders of the Home, and a leader in the work of the Federation, took part in the dedication. Speaking of the need of the extension, Louis Singer, president of Bnai Brith, pointed out that the building would cost in the neighborhood of $15,000.

A few of the Endorsements Received for the Toronto Talmud Torah Campaign

From the Jewish Theological Seminary of America

CYRUS ADLER

January 12, 1925.

Dear Mr. Gelber:

I wish to congratulate the Jewish Community of Toronto on the excellent work that has already been done in furthering the effort to establish a Jewish Community Centre and Hebrew School for the city. The future of Judaism on this continent depends entirely on the extent to which we succeed in implanting loyalty to our traditions in the hearts and minds of our youth.

Such a structure as you are now engaged in building cannot but prove a source of strength to the community in its efforts to maintain among the children the high spiritual standing which made our forefathers admired and respected. It is my earnest hope that the Jewish community of Toronto will rally to your call and see to it that the building is completed and amply supported.

Faithfully yours,

(Signed) CYRUS ADLER,
President.

From Mayor Foster

THOMAS FOSTER

Toronto, January 14, 1925.

E. PULLAN, ESQ.,
Chairman, Campaign Committee,
Toronto Hebrew Free School.

My dear Mr. Pullan:

It has been brought to my attention that the structure at Nos. 9-13 Brunswick Avenue, to be used as a Jewish Community Centre, is approaching completion, and that it will be opened in a few months.

The aim of the promoters is to establish a comfortable, homelike centre with, among other things, all the facilities required for wholesome play and recreation, under proper supervision. Its operation will, I believe, promote the best interest of those it is designed to serve, and so it will be a benefit to the City of Toronto. I, therefore, wish the undertaking every success.

The Campaign Committee's appeal for funds should meet with a generous response. The members of the Committee give their services without fee, and it is only fair that by liberal contributions from supporters of the Institution they be relieved from all financial worry.

Yours very truly,
THOMAS FOSTER,
Mayor

From the Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary

January 12, 1925.

M. GELBER, ESQ.,
President, Hebrew Institute, Toronto.

My dear Mr. Gelber:

The Yeshiva Rabbi Isaac Elchanan, the great Torah centre on this continent, sends you, your co-workers, and Toronto Jewry, its greetings and blessings at the completion and dedication of the Hebrew Institute of Toronto, which is dedicated to the dissemination of knowledge.

Our holy Torah is the soul of Israel's existence and is the light that leads man to God, justice and righteousness. Only in the knowledge of our holy Torah and of our priceless spiritual possessions, and in the observance of the precepts, is Israel's hope and strength. It is our supreme task and privilege to transmit our glorious heritage of transcendent value to our children.

I know that the Hebrew Institute of Toronto is conceived in the true spirit of Jewish education, which, as its very term implies, means the dedication of man to the service of God and to the welfare of Israel and humanity.

I hope and pray that the Institute will help to perpetuate and advance Jewish life and culture in Toronto, and will be the instrument for the transmission of the Divine light to the Toronto Jewish youth.

I trust that the staff of teachers and workers of the Hebrew Institute will always be imbued with, and conscious of, the glory of Israel's past and of our duty to Israel's heritage.

With kind greetings, I am,

Sincerely yours,

B. REVEL,
President of the Rabbi Isaac
Elchanan Theological Seminary

From the United Synagogues of America

RABBI S. M. COHEN

January 6, 1925.

MR. M. GELBER,
Toronto, Canada.

Dear Mr. Gelber:

Since I left Toronto, I have been giving considerable thought to the present status of Judaism in your city. I am feeling more and more strongly that the greatest need that Toronto's Jewish Community has at this time is in the field of Jewish education. There does not seem to be a single religious school where the subjects of Hebrew, Jewish history and the Jewish religion are taught in a modern, pedagogical way, in a way that would keep our younger generation loyal to the faith of their fathers.

I am accordingly constrained to write you and to express my sincere hope and trust that the splendid work which you are engaged in—the building of the Toronto Talmud Torah and the establishment of the work in the Talmud Torah should succeed to a rapid and complete consummation.

I believe that every Jew and Jewess who is loyal to Traditional Judaism, no matter what fine work they may be engaged in at the present time, should bend their efforts to complete the establishment of this institution.

With best wishes for success, I am,

Sincerely yours,

RABBI S. M. COHEN,
Executive Director.

The Toronto Hebrew School Building Fund and Membership Campaign will be held during the week of January 26th
